Annual Report to the 2010 Annual General Meeting of the Wellington Section of the New Zealand Alpine Club

Introduction

As I began collecting my thoughts for this report a month or so ago it was generally looking all positive however the tragic accident on our Alpine Instruction Course last month has since cast a shadow on that earlier optimism.

On 7th Aug Paul McLauchlan lost his life in a climbing accident in Grand Gully on Mt Ruapehu. Our condolences are extended to all Paul's family and friends. In the aftermath of this event it has been good to see how everyone has rallied round to face up to what has occurred and support those that were more closely involved with the incident.

We also must not forget the accident that occurred on Mitre Peak at Easter this year where Lynne Osborne was killed in a fall. Once again our thoughts are with Lynne's family and those close to Lynne.

We all understand that climbing is not without its risks however it still hits us hard when tragedies such as these occur. It will take us all individually and collectively as a Section a bit of time to get back to normal 'health' after these terrible events.

Governance

For the second year running the Section has been without a Chairperson. Despite this the Committee has still coped well throughout the year in keeping the Section running smoothly however this arrangement will not be sustainable for too much longer. A full time Chairperson is vital in providing direction and leadership particularly when problems and crises arise such as those of the last month or so.

The onus is on all of us to find suitable leaders for the Section in the coming year.

Membership

Membership numbers are up slightly from 399 in September last year to 410 now. This is in line with our usual growth rate so is reasonable result.

Activities

This past year has seen the Section as active as ever.

Our usual Summer Rock and Alpine Instruction courses have been completed and have brought another fresh induction of new and enthusiastic climbers into the fold. A number of new courses have been developed this year and have proved popular; navigation, alpine hazard awareness. Hopefully we can bed these and more new courses into the annual calendar over the next year or so.

The trips programme remains vibrant and interesting with trips of all climbing genres running to places all over the North and South Islands and even Mt Arapiles Australia. The Section owes a huge thanks to all the trip leaders and those that took part. More of this please.

Events are now becoming a major and established area of activity for the Section. The Banff Mountain Film Festival continues to be successful. The NZ Mountain Film Festival was screened for the second year running and lecture tours are now becoming the norm with Stephen Venables and Jon Muir both visiting Wellington this past year.

Events are of growing importance to the club both as a means of promoting climbing and the club but also as a significant fund raiser for the club. They require many hands to organize so the Committee will be looking for keen members to assist wherever possible in the future.

And finally of worthy mention is that our regular activities carry on as normal and of ever improving standard; club nights, Vertigo newsletter, photo competition, the Rock Hop, and our website - <http://www.nzalpine.wellington.net.nz>

Unwin Hut Project

We have taken the significant decision this year to commit $20,000 of the Section's reserves towards the Unwin Hut Project. This decision was not taken without careful consideration by the Committee and consultation with our members. It was great to see that we had unanimous support for the decision throughout the Section.

Having done this we will now have to manage our finances much more effectively than in the past until we build up our reserves again. This will be a particular focus for the Committee this coming year.

Distaghil Sar Fund

There have been no Distaghil Sar awards made since 2007 so this year the Committee was delighted to award both Scott Taylor and Robin Maxwell Distaghil Sar awards. Our congratulations are extended to these two deserving recipients.

Bouquets

Firstly we must thank the outgoing Committee, and all those volunteers who lent them a hand, for their huge collective effort to provide a full calendar of events and activities for us to all enjoy this year.

Credit is given to Richard Davies who has now ascended to the office of President of Federated Mountain Clubs of New Zealand.

And finally congratulations to John Nankervis and Nigel Roberts who both received Queens Honours this year.

Treasurer's Report to the 2010 Annual General meeting of the Wellington Section of the New Zealand Alpine Club

The Financial Statements this year are for the 12 months from 1 July 2009 to 30th June 2010.

This means that the results this year include parts of Income and Expenditure for the Alpine Instruction Course for 2009 and 2010.

Summary:

The 2009/10 year has been another year of strong financial performance from the club. Despite the tough economic times, membership numbers and instruction days were both up. Having more people in the section, and having more people developing their skills up a hill, or at a crag directly translates into revenue for the section. Interestingly, despite membership being up, our section night takings were well down!

Another successful Banff was run, and the New Zealand Mountain Film Festival and Stephen Venables talk brought in valuable revenue for the club. Thanks must go to Steve Minchin who has managed these on behalf of the committee and has done a magnificent job.

The AIC and summer rock courses were again delivered to Budget – or better. Thanks go to Don French and Blair Hiscoke for their careful financial stewardship.

Our strong balance sheet has enabled us to:

- invest in library books and videos ($600)
- offer a range of interesting and informative speakers ($2,300)
- support the national priority of the Unwin Hut redevelopment ($20,000)

It was also a pleasure to sit on the panel which considered the Distigil Sar award for 2009/10. It has been several years since we made an award, and it was great to see an award made to two people so committed to instruction. Scott Taylor and Robin Maxwell well deserve their awards.

Lastly, thanks for all your patience and support for the 18 months I have been Treasurer. A huge thank you must go to Catherine Moger who supplemented her Secretary duties by drawing on her accountancy skills and institutional knowledge of the section to help me on innumerable occasions with the accounts. I have had to step aside, as I have some other voluntary commitments which have overtaken me, but the section is lucky to have a very keen and able replacement in Matt Knartson.

Richard Davies
August 2010

Points of Note:

1. The club returned a surplus again this year. This reflects prudent and skilled management particularly of the instruction courses.
2. AIC 2009 ran at a surplus, and it looks like 2010 will as well. As the courses span our financial year, the committee should consider how we demonstrate this to our members (as noted above, the figures in the accounts span parts of two courses).

3. The Banff Mountain Film Festival was a great success in 2010. Increasingly events such as Banff will be used to support National projects such as Unwin, and this will affect the revenue to the section.
4. Our Newsletter costs continue to come down as more and more people switch to electronic versions.
5. Our loan of $20,000 to National for the Unwin refurbishment will mean that our equity looks much reduced next year.

1 Statement of Accounting Policies

General Accounting Policies

The measurement base adopted is historical cost. Reliance is placed on the fact that the Section is a going concern. Accrual accounting is used to match expenses and revenues.

Particular Accounting Policies

Accounts receivable are valued at expected realisable value.

Fixed assets are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation, on a diminishing value basis. Depreciation rates adopted are:

Library books	5%	DV
Climbing equipment	20%	DV
Computer software	48%	DV
Projector	20%	DV
Data show	24%	DV

Costs relating to events include any donations made to the National Office out of any surplus arising.

Changes in Accounting Policies

There have been no changes in accounting policies. All policies have been applied on bases consistent with those used in previous years.

Wellington Section of the New Zealand Alpine Club

I have audited the financial report on the attached pages. The financial report provides information about the income and expenditure of the Wellington Section of the New Zealand Alpine Club for the year ended 30 June 2010. This information is stated in accordance with the accounting policies.

Committee's Responsibilities

The Committee is responsible for the preparation of a financial report which gives a true and fair view of the financial position of the Wellington Section of the New Zealand Alpine Club as at 30 June 2010 and of the results of operations for the year ended on that date.

Auditors' Responsibilities

It is my responsibility to express an independent opinion on the financial report presented by the Committee and report my opinion to you.

Basis of Opinion

An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence relevant to the amounts and disclosures in the financial report.

I conducted my audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards in New Zealand. I planned and performed my audit so as to obtain all the information and explanations which I considered necessary in order to provide myself with sufficient evidence to give reasonable assurance that the financial report is free from material misstatements, whether caused by fraud or error. In forming my opinion I also evaluated the overall adequacy of the presentation of information in the financial report.

Other than in my capacity as auditor I have no relationship with or interests in the Wellington Section of the New Zealand Alpine Club.

Unqualified Opinion

I have obtained all the information and explanations that I have required.

In common with entities of this kind, control over revenues prior to being recorded is limited and there is no practical audit procedures to determine the effect of the limited control.

Subject to this limitation, in my opinion the financial report fairly reflects the results of operations for the year ended 30 June 2010.

My audit was completed on 31 August 2010 and my unqualified opinion is expressed as at that date.

Tahurangi and Girdlestone, 9 -11 July

So Friday night all 9 or 11 of us – it was difficult to be sure – managed to co-ordinate our lifts and arrive at the Powerdkeg in Ohakune in time to co-ordinate the next day.

“what?” “what?” “sorry, I didn’t hear that?” “what?” “I said it’s been snowing and the road’s closed till 8am” “what?”

Having efficiently organised ourselves on the basic idea that we’d be up at 7am and would need snow chains, we retired to the backpackers. The desert road was closed, so every truck in the north island drove past Ohakune. At 3am the other backpackers were thrown out of the town’s assorted bars and came back to party outside our dormitory. My first confused sense that some other climbers were heading off on an Alpine start and wondering how they’d get up the road quickly soured as I realised that I was thinking in terms of the wrong end of the day for these people. Mental note – don’t feel guilty about getting up early in the morning, or any obligation not to accidentally bang ice axes against dormitory doors.

Saturday morning, the weather looks good and we breakfast, planning who will climb and how. Ideas to circle around the back of Tahurangi and climb the crater face don't look good in light of the "considerable" avalanche risk on the access. We'll take ropes anyway in case we want them for the Tahurangi – Girdlestone traverse. "I've got a rope." "Oh, I've got one too." "I brought two ropes." I've got one in the car just in case." Could we do the first expedition-style ascent of Tahurangi's skyline ridge, with fixed rope from the top of the ski-field? Nice idea, not enough time...

The sky is blue, clear and cold and it's minus 3 degrees in the carpark, with a biting southerly. With snow chain confusion and traffic jams we quickly get separated into three groups and only reunite near the top of Tahurangi. For some insane reason I'm carrying snowshoes. Most of us are carrying harnesses and technical gear – but once we've walked to Ruapehu's high point no-one likes the look of the ridge to Girdlestone, the well below freezing temperature or the advancing clock and we all walk down again. A few of us stop off at some ice to play around on the ice, dig a snow pit (confirming a nasty looking slab over a weak layer on the west facing slopes) and ponder the relative merits of vertical and horizontal mid clip anchors. Sensational views of the crater, Ruapehu's peaks and out to Taranaki make for a perfect first day. Is there a more pleasant place to be in the north island than experiencing that alpine feel along the final few metres of summit ridge to Tahurangi?

The second day is even more perfect than the first. No trucks or partying ski-ers tonight and we head off nice and early to climb the southwest buttress of Girdlestone. The weather is sensational – clear skies again, solid snow underfoot, hardly a breath of wind.

We break into different parties to avoid over-crowding the ridge; two of us head back to climb Tahurangi a second time, a party of 3 spends the afternoon struggling up and then down again 30 metres of unclimbable, aerated ice; the viable route goes up steep but solid snow. I turn around a couple of hundred metres below the summit and five people actually make it to the top. Another perfect day, easy climbing (1 roped up pitch), glorious weather and conditions.

A great trip; well planned, well run, and the weather was a particularly nicely organised touch.

Peter Ellis

Mt Travers

In late July, Steve Dowall, Tom Wilson (Wellington Section) and Simon Williamson (Non Aligned Movement) wandered up to the top of the Travers Valley and eventually summited Mt Travers via its East Face and North East ridge.

It was a good trip for body conditioning. Energy intake was managed via combined vegetarian and gluten-free eating preferences. Simon brought milk bottle lollies too - not exactly sure what food group they fall into. Energy expenditure consisted of a up-valley slog meshing perfectly with the snow slog on the slopes of Travers itself, followed with a night-slog back down the valley.

Snow conditions were generally soft with the exception of one gully which sported actual and real ice steps (convenient as justification for taking a rope, for abseiling).

INFORMER from Committee

Wellington Section Funding Contribution to the Unwin Project

In the article in the July Vertigo it was proposed that Wellington Section should contribute $20,000 towards the Unwin Hut Project. We invited members to let the Committee know what they thought of this proposal.

The feedback that we received indicated that there was a great deal of support for the proposal.

As a result of this the Committee is very pleased to announce that it has now formalised its decision to commit these funds towards the Unwin Hut Project.

Thank you everyone for helping us through to reaching this most significant decision.

NOTICES

1974 Kaipo Wall documentary

This is just to let you know that an old Ed Hillary doco has become available on New Zealand On Screen. It's an epic expedition to climb Fiordland's Kaipo Wall for the first time, in 1974. In part two Murray Jones and Graeme Dingle attack the imposing 1000m face. Awesome cinematography captures the old school thrill of adventure.

People can watch the film online (for free) at <http://www.nzonscreen.com/title/the-adventure-world-of-sir-edmund-hillary-1974/series>

The movie can also legally be embedded into websites, etc (there's a tab on the right-hand, lower part of the page)

There are a few other movies on the site that climbers might be interested in.

NZ On Screen is a publicly-funded project aiming to make NZ film and TV more accessible on the internet. There's no commercial angle – just trying to get stuff out there.

Their summits are the North Island's premier alpine wilderness; many North Island climbers first learned their craft here, whether on ice, rock or snow. This guide spans the range of climbing opportunities Tongariro National Park provides. Ruapehu, especially, is world-famous as a skier's mountain, and opportunities for ski-mountaineering away from the big fields are described. But it is also the first ever detailed guide to alpine routes and technical ice climbs. The rich tradition of rock climbing in the park is celebrated, from the early twentieth century pioneers on Holl's Rock to modern test pieces in the Whakapapa Gorge. The book is illustrated with images from some of New Zealand's top outdoor photographers, and topographical maps and photo-topos show the routes in detail. Whatever kind of climbing adventure you are planning in the national park, this book will provide information and inspiration

Soaring above the bleached tussock plains of the McKenzie Basin, the high peaks of the Southern Alps have been the focus of New Zealand mountaineers for over 100 years. Everything a mountaineer could wish for in the area, is encompassed by this guide - classic ice routes are detailed, as are the more recent flurry of superb climbs on the district's neglected rock buttresses.

This guide covers known climbing routes up to June 2001 and provides a short description of access and a difficulty grading. For the first time, routes on the peaks of the Godley valley are included. This is the definitive account of the region's mountaineering opportunities.

Feeling for daylight: the photographs of Jack Adamson

The Jack Adamson Collection, a rare and unique collection of glass plate photographs (1889-1901), has been sumptuously reproduced in this significant publication. Feeling for Daylight: The Photographs of Jack Adamson provides a stunning photographic journey around the Southern Alps and early settler communities on the eastern and western side of the mountains. Adamson captured some of the pivotal moments in the history of earlier New Zealand mountaineering. His photographs include wonderful character studies, beautiful topographical views and his work contains a surprising array of emotion — the everyday, the humorous and moments of spontaneity that were rare for this period of photography. The author, Rhian Gallagher, received a Canterbury Community Historian grant in 2007. Gallagher sets Adamson's photography in context, unravelling some of the complicated twists and turns of his story.

Alpine hut users get direct line to helicopters

High on the main divide, sheltering in a hut with a five-day Norwest storm forecast – there's one thing you want to do – Get out! New radios DOC has just installed in these Alpine Huts will ensure you have the best chance yet of not getting trapped.

Radios in Pioneer, Centennial, Almer and Chancellor huts have long been available for hut users to contact DOC regarding party intentions and weather reports, and for emergency use. However, they have just got better!

Four new radios have been installed in the West Coast alpine huts at Fox and Franz Josef Glaciers. The radios will allow climbers and skiers to communicate directly with helicopter companies to get a lift out of the mountains at their convenience.

Each of the huts is very different: Chancellor Hut has been sheltering climbers for a century and was carried up the glacier in pieces by packhorse, while Centennial Hut is relatively new, having only been in use since 1993. All of the huts play a vital role in sheltering climbers and skiers from the elements and have provided bases for climbs of New Zealand's most impressive peaks, such as Mt Tasman/Horo Koau. As they are located at altitudes of up to 2200m above sea level, walking to one of the alpine huts from the roadend or walking out at the end of an exhausting trip could take more time than climbing the mountain! Time off to go climbing is a precious resource for many climbers, so being able to arrange a ten minute helicopter flight to avoid an eight hour walk through challenging glaciated terrain is important for many of the people who escape to the mountains for recreation.

By using the pre programmed channels hut users will be able to contact helicopter companies based in Franz Josef or Fox Glacier directly. This will be a much more effective way for climbers and skiers to alert pilots to clearing weather or to warn them about sudden cloud masses surrounding the landing sites

“We've really enjoyed working with DOC and the helicopter companies to develop this fantastic new service to the climbing community”, says Ollie Clifton of the New Zealand Alpine Club. “This is a great improvement to the accessibility of the huts and mountain services. Improvements such as these would not be possible without contributions from hut users, so everyone who has paid their hut fees has helped to make this project happen”.
