Short Talks

Ever thought about joining one of the Section's trips into the big hills? Rob Hawes will kick off the evening recounting the trip he led to Tasman Saddle Hut in November, where a bout of very good weather meant all rest days were cancelled and many peaks climbed, including Elie de Beaumont.

Following on from this, Hinrich Schaefer, our trips co-ordinator, will lead a session on trip ideas. Come along to let him know what trips you'd love to see the Section run this year, be they alpine, rock, or something else altogether!

We'll then take a break from home to hear about Scott Miller's three months in Peru on a shoestring, climbing on the Cordilleras Blanca and Huayhuash.

To finish off, James Wright and Anjali Pande will trek even further into the Northern Hemisphere with Anjali's home-made movie of their trip to Squamish.

Some great experiences will be recounted before catching up over tea and biscuits. Look forward to seeing you there!

In The Wake of Worsley Expedition – Fundraising

Last year an energetic and enthusiastic woman approached Kylie Wakelin, the first Kiwi woman to ski to the South Pole, inviting her to join them in a women's expedition to sail to and traverse South Georgia. Their aim was to follow the same alpine route as Frank Worsley did on the famous Shackleton Expedition to cross the Antarctic continent 1914-1916. With six men, Worsley sailed in an open lifeboat across 800 miles of Southern Ocean to South Georgia navigating with only a sextant. Three of them then traversed the unmapped mountain range to reach a whaling station to launch a rescue of the remaining men marooned on Elephant Island.

Viv, a veteran mountain and marathon runner, was keen to commemorate Worsley's traverse, and thus approached Kylie. Kylie said she'd love to join the trip, but it's an expensive adventure, and from the point of view of raising money asked "what was the angle?"

In the mountain world we are so used to identifying our achievements in firsts or highest or in Kylie's case, furthest. The South Georgia Traverse has been repeated by climbers and skiers before but never by an all women's expedition. Still, Kylie felt that in order to raise enough money for this journey there had to be something, just a little more...

Kylie contacted me about joining the team. I immediately said how much I've always wanted to do that famous traverse and would love to join the team. I then echoed Kylie's words - as far raising money though, "What was the angle?"

I joined Kylie at a meeting with Viv. At the table there was another woman sitting quietly. Viv introduced her as Lee, and that she was very keen to join us on the Traverse. Lee had lovely (non-weather beaten) skin and hands without scars! We realised that Lee was an interested 4th member of our team. She was without mountain experience as yet, so we were both quietly worried that she might not be tough enough... then Lee introduced herself and said she was a mother of six!

Kylie and I leaned forward at exactly the same time, and in the same words said "Mother-of-Six? - You're in!"

In our eyes, no-one could look that serene and be a Mother of Six without having the same kind of enthusiasm and determination required to raise money and to sail to South Georgia and then to follow the historic traverse across the mountain range. Lee said she'd spent 20 years in motherhood, and wanted to spend the next 20 years doing adventures.

Why not start Start Big we thought? What an amazing journey to start from knowing nothing about the mountains and everything about children, to traversing a range on a remote island in the Southern Ocean in the memory of another tenacious New Zealander. We had our angle!

The exact dates of the journey are not finalised but will take place between 2011 and late 2012 sailing from Argentina to the Falklands thence to South Georgia, and making the traverse.

To support the Wake of Worsley you can purchase: In The Wake of Worsley 2011 Calendar

Frank Hurley 1885-1962, was an Australian, and the official photographer on Shackleton's expedition. His beautiful black & white images reside in the archives of the National Library of Australia. Hurley was unique in that he often took his own images and over-painted features and people. In this way the photographer was a chronicler beyond straight images.

Very kindly 9 Wanaka-based businesses have sponsored us to purchase the right to reproduce 14 of these images. The Wake of Worsley expedition has produced a simple calendar for 2011, with a Frank Hurley image for each month, and the sponsors' names are on each page. These calendars cost $17.50 including standard postage within New Zealand. All proceeds from the calendars go towards funding our expedition.

Further information about our expedition, details of the team members, a time line of our journey, and the progress of our planning and preparation are available if you would like to know more: lydia@lydiabradey.com or 027 306 9891.

Best regards for 2011 and sincere thanks,

Lydia Bradey, Vivien Evers (Leader), Kylie Wakelin, Lee Ball.

PS The expedition name was originally conceived as a joke around the table..."The Wicked Wenches in the Wake of Worsley!"*

Online Registrations Instructions

Online registrations are recorded separately from the NZAC membership database, so are not set up automatically if you are an NZAC member.

To obtain an online registration you need to click on the link under the log in boxes on the NZAC Homepage 'CREATE NEW ACCOUNT'. Once you have followed the instructions and completed the registration you will be emailed back a confirmation email that includes your log in password. If you are an NZAC member, the online system will have matched you against our membership database so that when you log in, it will recognize you as a member and give you member rates for purchases.

Changes made online to contact details are not automatically updated on the membership database, so will only be picked up if you are doing an online sub renewal. Otherwise you will still need to manually inform the office of any changes of address, etc.

New members joining online do not get member rates instantly as the two systems have to be updated before their member status is recognized. Please allow 1-2 days for the updates to take place and for the application to be processed.

Rock Wren Sightings

If you have recently tramped, or are planning on tramping in the South Island's alpine areas over the remainder of the summer period, you may be able to assist researchers from the University of Otago with a Rock Wren survey. Reports of any recent sightings anywhere in the South Island would be greatly appreciated. Rock Wrens are small birds (10 cm) with almost no tail, have very high-pitched calls and often bob up and down. They are poor fliers and are usually found amongst boulder fields, scree and low scrub in open alpine areas.

Please send details (location, grid or map ref, # of birds) to: Kerry Weston, Department of Zoology, University of Otago. Email: kerry-anne.weston@otago.ac.nz

Tukino Lodge – Acquire Member Privileges

The New Zealand Alpine Club have been working with the Tukino Alpine Sports Club to secure member privileges to their lodge at Tukino Skifield on the eastern side of Mt Ruapehu. A number of New Zealand Alpine Club supporters have each contributed $2,000 each to acquire these privileges.

We have almost got our full complement of financial supporters, but we are still a few short of our target. These financial supports also attract some personal privileges from their contribution. If you can't make this amount, smaller donations are welcome.

Tukino is a fantastic spot. There are very few areas in NZ where you can drive to within a few minutes' walk of high class ice climbs. The ski-touring is brilliant, and there is an impressive amount of rock waiting to be climbed over the summer months, all within minutes from the lodge door. The lodge is a good base for the trek up to the clubs Whangaehu hut. Being able to drive to the lodge door makes it an ideal base for family groups. And of course there is the un-crowded ski field for the winter entertainment. Tukino definitely earns its name as "the wild side" mainly because of its untouched and uncrowded nature.

If you can't help financially we are also looking for a few people to help with the maintenance program, like plumbers, builders and experts with paint brushes or shovels. We even would like some administrators. Have a look at the Tukino Alpine Sports Club website at <http://tukinoalpinesportsclub.org.nz/>. By the way, the hut is available for hire over the summer months to NZAC members at $15.00pp.
