Eight out of 13: climbing in the USA, by Nigel Roberts

IN THE COURSE OF preparing a short talk for the Alpine Club in 2005, Nigel Roberts formulated a goal for himself: to climb the 13 peaks in the USA that together constitute the 10 highest and 10 hardest of the American state highpoints. At that stage, Nigel had climbed just one of them. Now, six years later – after another four climbing trips to the United States (in 2006, 2007, 2009, and 2010) – Nigel has climbed eight of 'his' 13 peaks, including the seven hardest.

On Monday evening, 2 May, Nigel will give an overview of the whole project and an account of his latest climbs – in Colorado, Oregon, Utah, and Idaho.

Club nights are at Turnbull House, on the first unimpeded Monday of every month. New and prospective members are welcome. Meetings and talks start at 8.00 pm with club business and tea & coffee afterwards. Meet for dinner at the Backbencher public bar at 6.30 pm and on to Turnbull House at 7.30 pm for a catch up.

Submit your best photos to see them on the big screen, get feedback from photography experts, vote on this year's best shots, and be in to win great prizes from our sponsors.

A panel of first-rate photographers / photo-connoisseurs will present a selection of the best shots for the audience to choose the winners. The competition will be held at the June club night (Monday 13 June).

Entries can be submitted from April 15th until May 22nd.

1) Pick out your best pictures for the following categories:

- Alpine Activity: climbing, skiing, whatever you do up high
- Alpine General: scenery and views that make you want to come back
- Alpine Nature: the little gems of beauty along the way
- Rockclimbing: hardest moves, slickest lines
- Photo Journalism: the shot that tells a story
- Humour: whatever gets you a laugh

2) Fill out an entry form (available on our website or by email) and send it to wgtphotocomp@gmail.com

If entering slides or prints, please scan them first – we need all entries to be in digital format. Maximum of three entries per category per person.

Dream result

(Winner "People's Choice Award for Radical Reels")

A group of top kayakers and friends are driven by passion to explore the limits of possibility. Expeditions to Norway and a quest for waterfalls throughout Argentina and the US are all part of the program in Dream Result — so hang on for the ride!

Crossing the ditch

Spanning 2200 kilometres between Australia and New Zealand, the Tasman Sea is one of the world's deadliest and most treacherous oceans. No one had ever successfully navigated the Tasman by kayak, although many had tried. Crossing the Ditch tells the story of two young Australians, James Castrission and Justin Jones, who battle ten-metre towering waves, massive storms, shark-filled seas, and strong currents to conquer the Tasman Sea.

Oseven

A group of friends meet up at a chalet in Chamonix Mont Blanc to recount their extreme sport experiences. OSeven is based on Sigmund Freud's theory that "happiness is a child's dream fulfilled in maturity."

Easter rises

(Winner "Best film on mountain sports")

The Kamchatka Peninsula in the Russian Far East may as well be the end of the earth. Its enormously wild landscape is swarming with bugs and bears and threaded with rivers full of massive mouse-eating trout. In the stunning film Eastern Rises, fishing is poetry, Bigfoot lurks in the fog, and fishermen risk life and limb in decommissioned Cold War helicopters to explore rivers that have never been fished before.

Thursday 12th May: "Dry"

Follow me

You're at the head of a trail you have never ridden before. With a knowing look, a friend turns to you and says, "Just follow me!" Depending on who says it makes a pretty big difference for what lies ahead, but whether it's a good idea or not, we almost always drop in. From sending giant step-downs to high-speed trails, it's always better to share the ride.

The Asgard project

(Winner "Award crest")

The Asgard Project follows Leo Houlding's ambitious project to make a first free ascent of the North Tower of the incredible Mount Asgard on Baffin Island deep in the Arctic. Houlding teams up with fellow big wall climber Stanley Leary, and the duo hopes to make a wingsuit descent from the summit. Arriving late in the season, the trip soon begins to go wrong. After a spectacular arrival skydiving over Mount Asgard, conditions turn against the team, so that just reaching the base of the climb becomes a massive challenge.

As it happens

Renan and Corey Bradshaw "go rogue" and file video dispatches from their attempt at the first ascent of Nepal's 6,000 meter Tawoche Himal. The film takes these individual pieces and ties them together in one story that lets a challenging trip unfold as it happens.

Living the dream

For most of the last six years, Renan Ozturk has been a traveling vagabond following his passion for rock climbing. This existence involved sleeping outside in wild places, hitching rides, living on little, draining his bank account, and occasionally, dumpster diving. Now a little more domesticated, Renan shows us he is still living his dream every day.

Second nature

An exploration of the abstract and the extreme, Second Nature is an examination of the natural boundaries of the human body. Noah Sakamoto, Patrick Rizzo and J.M. Duran star as the test subjects as they wield skateboards and vintage suits to race down the roads of the High Sierras in California.

Fly or die

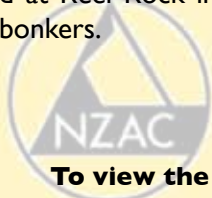

Cutting edge climber Dean Potter is innovating climbing for the future: the Base Free Solo. By combining free solo climbing and base jumping, Dean is on a quest to master the various disciplines that lead up to this bold evolution of the sport. Note that while this film screened at Reel Rock in late 2010, this extended version manages to be even more bonkers.

The Wellington Section is on Facebook

YES, YOU READ THAT CORRECTLY. After some serious debates on the matter, a rogue faction of the Committee mounted a virtual coup during one seemingly ordinary Monday night meeting, the result being that the Wellington Section is now officially on Facebook.

What does this mean for the Section?

This is great news, as Facebook is an excellent way for the Section to engage with members and non-members who are on Facebook and are keen on this means of communication. It is a great aide to the Section's objectives of promoting climbing in the Wellington region and assisting climbers to get in touch with each other. We will, of course, do our best not to be caught up with any plans for world domination that exist deep within the Facebook world.

If you'd like to join us, the link is www.facebook.com/nzacwellington

If you are not a Facebook user, don't be concerned – you will continue to be able to get all Section news via Vertigo and our website.

Our Facebook initiative responds to a discussion at the March Section night, where members expressed interest in seeing the Section on Facebook. With this in mind, if you have any ideas about how we might use our Facebook page or what you'd like to see on it, we are keen to hear your thoughts. You can email Lorraine on lj@nzalpine.wellington.net.nz or visit our Facebook page!

Darrans pt I: Mt Madeline and Sabre

Don French

DON FRENCH JOINED a small group of Wellington climbers for two weeks of rain at Homer Hut during February.

He managed to maximise the small fine weather window to record an ascent of Mt Madeline (with Emma Martin - Sydney) from Turners Rock Bivy. Madeline is a fine ice mountain from this approach, and is the second highest summit in the region. It should be noted that Turners Rock Bivy is incorrectly marked on most maps. It is advisable to have prior knowledge of the descent route from the bivy as it is unforgiving of any navigation mistakes, and the cairned route can be obscure at times.

Don then teamed up with Dan Pringle to climb the North Buttress of Sabre a few days later. They approached the mountain from Adelaide Saddle and secured a comfortable bivy at the base of the buttress.

The ascent was executed without incident other than the occasional variation onto the north east face to add some variation to the climb. The post climb night was spent once again at the base of the buttress with a large full moon dominating the night's sleep.

Darrans pt 2: New Routes at The Lab

James Wright

IN THE MEANTIME WHILST Don and his rope-gun Dan headed off for Sabre, James thought he'd take advantage of Max and Mayan's offer of their bolting kit to pioneer a line that he could actually climb at The Lab. This was purely an egotistical pursuit to impress the Lab-rat set and get his name in the guide book.

However, finding easier grade rock there and then bolting it posed some significant challenges. No access on rappel from the top meant the route would have to be bolted on lead. The learning curve was now becoming as steep as the rock.

Young Steve McNally was game to assist and what was hoped to be a light afternoon's work in the sun ended up becoming a bit of a project for the pair over the next three days. Unfortunately the desired searing line of grade 18 classic granite turned out to be just as hard as everything else there.

Patagonia Revisited

John Nankervis

LATE NOVEMBER John Cocks, Dave Ellis, Stuart Gray and John Nankervis attempted San Lorenzo (3,706m) Patagonia's second highest peak, conveniently wedged in a wind tunnel between the Northern and Southern Icecaps of Chile and Argentina. True to form, after reaching a high camp they were besieged in their tents and then driven off by storms. Rather than go back for more punishment they packed in to another area and climbed a nice 2,500 metre peak.

The two Johns visit Patagonia but once in every 40 years but it has not lost any of its wonderful allure.

EARLY OCTOBER Dave Bamford and John Nankervis – both in Europe for ‘work’ – met up in Zermatt. In between walks and a visit to the new mountaineering museum they attempted two easy 4,000 metre peaks. They turned back below the summit of Alphubel with glacier lassitude and then traversed the Breithorn on a perfect autumn day.

A Three Month Trip Report

Kevin Patterson

IT TOOK A WHILE but the Vertigo editor finally collared me to write this trip report. But that begs the question, “where do I start a three month trip report?”. Because that’s how long it’s been since I’ve left work and taken up the first real opportunity I’ve had to seriously indulge myself. But for me it was always more than that, it was and still is a very personal journey to decide what will inspire me. And the importance of always having a Plan B when the weather is no good haha. I don’t think I’m there yet, at least I don’t think so, but I know whatever happens I’m having a lot of fun finding out where I’m going.

So after three months, eight major peak successes (TAV, Manakau, Eyre, Rabbiters, Dasler Pinnacles, Brewster, Earnslaw and Christina), two peak failures (Sabre and Sir William), eight rock crags (Rapaki, Albert Tce, The Tors, Castle Rock, Charleston, Bakehouse, Kai Whaka Pai, Little Big Rock), and 15 games of tennis (did I mention always to have a Plan B?) what story can I tell you that will inspire you?

I think I will report on just one peak – remote from Wellington, it is reasonably straightforward to do as a summer climb, and provides some stunning scenery and excellent exposure near the top :o.

Eyre Peak (1969m)

This is notably one of the most inland peaks you can get. It is situated approximately 120km from all coasts in Central Otago near Mavora and Kingston just south of Lake Wakatipu. Access is reasonably straightforward from Fairlight along a DOC right of way although the last 5km is along a 4WD track. The hut marked on the map is NOT there. And the sandflies don’t bear thinking about so don’t bivvy there without adequate protection!

We started at about 6am on a blue sky day at 500m. Around 8am we were getting into some rather vigorous scrub at around 600m which persisted for a further three hours until we were above 800m on the south east ridge. We descended into the valley leading up to Billy Saddle at around 1200m and stopped for lunch. After a further two hours we were on the final summit rocks which lead to some interesting grade 5-6 rock scrambling. Finally we summited at 2pm and stood on a peak from which when looking in any direction the sea was too far away to be seen. Descent was more rapid and by 7pm we were back at our tent.

This would be a fun peak to do, particularly if you do it in summer and have a good head for rock scrambling. The scrub is a little annoying, however if you cross the stream just above where it splits off (directly on to the south east ridge) you will avoid the worst of it. The upper ridge and adjacent valley is particularly pleasant to travel along. A nice one to knock off in a day. Trip participants Kevin Patterson and Christine Latimer.

Looking back down the valley from the summit – see the ocean anyone?

Mount Owen, Kahurangi National Park

Date: 4-6 June (Queen's Birthday weekend)

Trip coordinator: TBA

Level: TBA

Kahurangi National Park is a gem of a mountain landscape with beautiful scenery, spectacular geologic formations and the highest diversity in alpine plant life in New Zealand.

The main objective of the trip is an ascent of Mt. Owen, which at 1875m is the highest peak in the park.

Notices

Hut Renovations

NZAC IS CURRENTLY in the midst of a busy post-summer huts capital programme, which means a number are temporarily closed – here are the details:

- Unwin Lodge, Aoraki Mt Cook National Park: after all the years of planning and fundraising, construction of the new bunkroom wing is about to begin. Unwin is now officially closed until the end of September.
- Colin Todd Hut, Mt Aspiring National Park: the weather has not quite cooperated with the construction team, so this hut remains closed. We expect the recladding work to be complete by mid April.

- Whangaehu Hut, Tongariro National Park: the recladding and window replacement project on this hut is partially completed, so this hut remains closed until further notice.

A huge thanks to all the club volunteers and DOC staff who are making all these projects possible, and a reminder to all hut users that paying your hut fees does make a huge difference to the club.

Any questions relating to the above huts & projects, see the NZAC website or feel free to contact NZAC national office: office@alpineclub.org.nz

Alternative accommodation while Unwin is out of action

AORAKI MT COOK ALPINE Lodge is pleased to offer NZAC members the following until the end of September on a space available basis.

Bunk Beds in unisex multi share room $36 per person per night. The beds are made up with our linen (we don't allow any other bedding), rooms are en-suite and are equipped with flat screen TV / DVD players, and some have tea coffee making facilities. A minimum of two people are required per room at this rate, a maximum of four per room is possible.

We can also offer a double room rate of $115 per night, this includes king size bed, towels shampoo and soap, en-suite, great views including Mount Cook, TV / DVD, tea and coffee making. Twin beds are an extra $8 per stay. Rate includes Continental breakfast.

Our lounge and fully equipped communal kitchen is a hit with everyone and offers warmth comfort and normally great company, not to mention the views. We offer ultra clean facilities and fabulous service with a smile.

If anyone has a special group enquiry please contact me directly otherwise reservations at admin@ao-rakialpinelodge.co.nz or 0800 680 680. The lodge is available for hire for special occasions at reasonable rates over the quiet winter period.

Hopefully this appeals to your readers, kind regards Tony Delaney, Aoraki Mt Cook Alpine Lodge Ltd <http://www.aorakialpinelodge.co.nz/>

Rock Wren Sightings

IF YOU HAVE RECENTLY tramped, or are planning on tramping in the South Island's alpine areas over the remainder of the summer period, you may be able to assist researchers from the University of Otago with a Rock Wren survey. Reports of any recent sightings anywhere in the South Island would be greatly appreciated. Rock Wrens are small birds (10 cm) with almost no tail, have very high-pitched calls and often bob up and down. They are poor fliers and are usually found amongst boulder fields, scree and low scrub in open alpine areas.

Please send details (location, grid or map ref, # of birds) to: Kerry Weston, Department of Zoology, University of Otago. Email: kerry-anne.weston@otago.ac.nz

Denis McLean

“HIGHLY RESPECTED DIPLOMAT, INTERNATIONAL relations authority and author dies” was the headline in the news media after the death of Denis McLean on 30 March. The accolades for his professional career were rightly very glowing. A few mentioned his interest in walking and referred to the book The Long Pathway: Te Ara Roa. He wrote this in 1986 after an 800km family walking expedition along the East Coast. He subsequently became chair of the Wellington Regional Trust of Te Araroa Trust for establishment of a walkway the length of New Zealand.

What is not commonly known is that Denis was also a member of NZAC for a good number of years, joining in 1966. From the late 1960s he was based in Wellington and went on several trips with Wellington section members. This included trips to the Kaikouras, Nelson lakes, Arthurs Pass, Egmont and Ruapehu. There is no record of him having done any really hard climbs, but this was more likely to have been because of his work and family commitments.

While Denis was based in Wellington he became friends with a fellow diplomat Colin McLean who was attached to the British High Commission. The two of them accompanied other members on several trips. He also went away with another New Zealand diplomat John McArthur.

His interest in the club did not wane and some years later when he was Secretary of Defence he was able to arrange a seat on an RNZAF flight for club member Dick Price to attend a high altitude medicine conference in Europe.

Bill Drake

BILL DRAKE, A LONG-TIME member of the Wellington Section, died recently. Those who knew Bill will remember him as a keen ski-tourer, climber and tramper. His love of the outdoors was reflected in his photography, and his work and hobby of map making which was recognised world-wide. He leaves many friends with fond memories of trips to remote and wild areas of the mountains.

Winter Instruction Programme

Introduction to Leading on Ice July 2 – 4

THIS COURSE WAS A hit last year and is for those with some alpine experience who want to get to grips with the physical and mental challenge of leading steep ice. The course will be based at Fox Glacier and the instruction carried out on the lower ice fall. Participants will make their way to Fox Glacier on the night of the 2nd July and return late on the evening of the 4th. Accommodation is at the NZAC Porter Lodge.

Go to: <http://alpineclub.org.nz/national-instruction-courses/alpine> for further info and an application form.

Introduction to Back Country Skiing September 4 – 9

THIS COURSE GOT RAVE reviews in 2010. It is for strong intermediate skiers wishing to progress from the ski field into the back country. Taught by qualified NZMGA Winter Guides you will learn all the skills required to be a safe and efficient ski tourer. The course is based at Canterbury's Mount Olympus Ski field in the Craigieburn Range and all food and accommodation is provided.

For more information and an application form go to: <http://alpineclub.org.nz/national-instruction-courses/ski>

FMC Video Competition

THE INAUGURAL FMC VIDEO Competition is being held this year. Details are available on the Video Competition Page (<http://www.fmc.org.nz/services-to-clubs/videocomp/>).

Mountain Skills for Youth

AS PART OF A new initiative, the New Zealand Alpine Club is offering a three day alpine instruction course for youth between the ages of 14 and 18 years.

The course will be instructed by qualified Mountain Guides and is aimed at teaching the basics of mountaineering to youngsters in the safe, fun and enthralling environment of Arthur's Pass.

The course will run over Queen's Birthday Weekend (June 4 – 6) and will be based out of the NZAC Lodge in the Arthurs Pass Village.

The cost is $480 and this includes all instruction, accommodation, food, avalanche safety equipment and a year's complimentary membership to the New Zealand Alpine Club.

If you are interested in this course, or think you know someone else who might be, contact Pat on 03 377 7595 or email: pat@alpineclub.org.nz

More information is available at: <http://alpineclub.org.nz/national-instruction-courses/alpine>

Tomatsu Nakamura: East of the Himalaya

JAPANESE EXPLORER TOMATSU NAKAMURA will be speaking on his exploration of the mountains of Eastern Tibet and Western China at the Cashmere Club, 50 Colombo St, Christchurch on Friday 20th May, at 7.30pm.

This is a must-see for everyone from armchair travellers to those with an interest in climbing or trekking way off the beaten track. For further information about Tomatsu go to: <http://alpineclub.org.nz/event/national-speaker-tours/tomatsu-nakamura>

Tickets are on sale at Bivouac Tower Junction and online at www.alpineclub.org.nz

Graham Zimmerman

AMERICAN ALPINIST GRAHAM ZIMMERMAN will be doing a speaking tour of some of the NZAC sections to talk on his recent expeditions. He says...

"The presentation I am currently putting together is a two part expose on why I think that New Zealand climbing is super legit. It does this by making a brief explanation of my experience 'cutting my teeth' in the Southern Alps and then goes through two trips from 2010, one to Patagonia one to Nepal (generally showing why the skills I learned in New Zealand were so important, dealing with things like long approaches, bad weather, steep terrain, weird conditions, failure...). The second half will be focused on the ascent of Mt Bradley in Alaska. It will be a full multimedia experience with pictures, music, movies and of course my mug yacking away."

Details of where he will be speaking will be announced soon!

Six Month Membership Extension

THE WINNER OF NZAC's six month membership extension for April is Ross Meffin (Canterbury / Westland Section). Renew your membership when it is due to be in with a chance to win.

The End of an Era

THERE ARE STILL A few National Bouldering Series T-shirts left and we are selling these below cost price at $20. These are exceptional value for a Chalky Digits Organic Cotton Tee-Shirt. It is also the last time the NZAC will be producing a tee-shirt for NBS so these are essentially collector's items. Mens and womens sizes and styles.
