March Section Night 10 March 2014

Aoraki/Mount Cook and Elie De Beaumont

Lorraine Johns will talk about surviving ten days on the loose in Aoraki/Mount Cook National Park. Just like Freda before her, Lorraine was surrounded only by the company of men and very large spiders. On such a trip, she needed to be able to fend for herself, which included estimating the minimum amount of chocolate required to retain the appearance of sanity, conducting stealth raids on the hut food boxes (and discovering the culinary delight that is instant mash), learning Swahili, exploring the range of cellphone reception around the Tasman Valley, and managing to exist in the same clothes for just a little too long ...

When they weren't busy lazing in the hut and beating south island climbers at cards, Lorraine and her team also climbed the Anzac Peaks, Cook, Vancouver, Glacier Dome, Aylmer, Hochstetter Dome, Green, Walter, Elie De Beaumont, and The Footstool. Lorraine will focus mainly on the ascents of Mount Cook and Elie De Beaumont, but steel yourself for gratuitous shots of other mouthwatering alpine vistas. For those who haven't already climbed these peaks, but would like to, Lorraine will also talk about how you might prepare for such a trip (or at least, reveal where you can charge your cell phone while at Plateau Hut).

Section Nights are at the Tararua Tramping Club clubrooms, 4 Moncrieff Street, Mount Victoria, Wellington on the second Monday of every month. New and prospective members are welcome. Meetings start 8.00 pm with tea & coffee afterwards

Trip Reports

4 years, 3 months and 50 Peaks

Simon Bell

Not everyone has the desire or talent to push forward the standards of mountaineering in New Zealand, putting up new routes and repeating hard classics. Peak bagging is a fun alternative which is a great way to explore new areas, develop fitness & skills, and meet new friends. The NZAC 100 peaks list (available online) is the ultimate peak bagging list and no-one has ticked them all off yet...

Here's my story for the first 50:

1. Ngauruhoe Nov '09 (side trip from the Tongariro Crossing): I didn't know there was a list but I sure was grumpy after a bad night's sleep in a tent. Why would you drive half the night to get up early and walk up a hill when you could stay at home, sleep in, and have bacon and eggs? I came from a rock climbing background in Christchurch where you can have your cake and eat it too.
2. Taranaki Nov '09 (north ridge): A solo day trip from Wellington. Spent more time driving than climbing. I had so much fun glissading that I missed the turn-off to the lodge. Someone I met on the 'round the mountain track commented that I looked out of control on the descent. In hindsight she was right!
3. Travers Feb '10 (north east ridge): We had two teams, the other going via the summit creek route. Walkie-Talkies between the groups provided much entertainment. There were plenty of man hugs on the summit.
4. Avalanche peak Apr '10 (from Bealey peak) a nice traverse as part of an Easter trip. I got nervous when visibility dropped though.
5. Tahurangi Sep '10 a traverse from Girdlestone. On a small section of ice, the lead climber was directly above me as I belayed (poor form from both of us) and I hoped he wouldn't fall on me.
6. Rolleston Mar '11 a summer traverse from Philistine with a Polish gent I met through a friend. He bought a big camera and tripod which I thought was funny. Afterwards he said he was so glad he didn't bring his wife (a non-climber).
7. Aspiring 'Nov 11 a big crew from Wellington (club trip). We walked in with 7 days of food and big packs. I worried the ramp would be soft on the way down, but it was harder than on the way up. The storm hit before we even got to the summit but we carried on. I almost didn't bother going to the very top - there was nothing to see.
8. Cook 'Nov 11 (via Linda glacier) my first mountain in Mt Cook National Park. Another big crew from Wellington (club trip). I took my light and fast 700g tramping pack to the summit but it came down looking worse for wear.
9. Haidinger Dec '11 (west ridge) a club trip to Pioneer hut - thanks Rob. Four hours up and six hours down. Got the ropes stuck, twice. About this time I learnt the value of having a mantra to calm you down while climbing steep ground.

10. Douglas Dec '11 (from Glacier Peak) and we were on a roll. Easier than we thought. In July '12 Vaughan and I attempted the central couloir route. We failed (not too surprisingly, this was my first time leading on ice) but Rob and I succeeded in Aug '13.

11. Lendenfeld Dec '11 (via Marcel Col) after 2 hours sleep while doing a 'half day' on west peak of Haast the day prior. We wanted Tasman, but didn't want it hard enough. We were back at the hut by 8am and back in Wellington the same day. As I lay in bed at home I wondered if we had attempted Tasman if we'd be back at the hut yet.
12. Annette Dec '11 (via Sebastapol Ridge). The peak is just a bump off the Annette Glacier but climbing the ridge was fun. About this time I became aware of the 100 peak list and started to record what I had done.
13. Nun's veil Jan '12 (Gorilla Stream) for the New Year. I climbed in tramping boots and found front pointing challenging. The price for the boat ride was a bottle of wine.
14. Faerie Queene Feb '12 (divide route) from a camp at the valley floor. We decided not to bring crampons or ice axe and ended up holding sharp stones in our hands for a short down-climb on a moderate, but firm, snow slope.
15. Tutoko Feb '12 (SE ridge) and my buddy forgot his crampons. We got some from someone at the motor camp and the pilot felt sorry for us and flew up higher than the designated landing spot to make up for lost time. When I got out of the helicopter I was blown away, even walking out looked challenging (and it was!)
16. Malte Brun Mar '12 (west ridge) a 3 day trip I thought. But we spent a night out at 2600m with one down jacket between two on a perfect clear night. We melted snow and put hot water in our bottles to keep our hands warm. Fittingly, we descended back to our high camp on April Fools' Day.

Lisa on the west ridge of Malte Brun. The following day was April Fools' and the joke was on us

17. Phipps Apr '12 (west ridge from the road) is not for everyone in summer due to the poor rock quality and steepness. I loved it.
18. Double Cone Apr '12 a solo climb after my friend invited me down for a rock climbing trip and then unexpectedly went home early. I was relaxed but glad to be wearing rock shoes.
19. Scotts Knob Jun '12 (standard route): My climbing partner got something stuck in her throat which I initially thought was funny but then she threw-up and I felt bad for laughing.
20. Hikurangi Jun '12 (standard route) - a thirtieth birthday celebration. I didn't know the mountains were this high so far north (1752m). Still, most of the height was gained from a farm track. The first place in the world to see the morning sun but we couldn't see much through the fog.
21. Tapuae o Uenuku Jul '12 (staircase stream) ended up being a solo climb after my climbing partner slipped on black ice in the stream just above the hut and got wet / frozen feet. Her saturated overtrousers froze to the rock seconds after we took them off.

22. Murchison Sep '12 (white glacier route) sometimes things go to plan, in this case a plan hatched for a particular weekend months in advance, with two people from Christchurch and two from Wellington.
23. Te ao Whekere and 24. Manakau Sep '12 a two day solo traverse to celebrate my 31st birthday. I flew to Nelson early morning and drove to the road end before summiting Te ao Whekere later that day. I tried out my down jacket and down pants / no sleeping bag combination and suffered. Started the traverse at 4am with frozen boots but a lovely bright full moon. I called the farmer from the summit of Manakau and he kindly agreed to pick me up from the road end to save a 14km walk!
25. Anzac Peaks (traverse) Nov '12: Part of a 16 day trip where we walked up the Hooker Valley from Mount Cook Village and walked down the Fox Glacier into Fox township. We got shut-down on a Grand Traverse attempt when we struck a mile of hard blue ice from middle peak to high peak. We accessed the Grand Plateau via Fife's Gut and Green Saddle.
26. Tasman (up Syme ridge, down the north shoulder) Nov '12: Felt good to get this one, especially after missing out on the grand traverse. We got to Pioneer Hut and found the remains of a freshly crashed helicopter. Everyone was ok, but I never heard about it in the media and the pilot was back flying the next day.
27. Haast (gully between divide peak and high peak) Nov '12: High peak is quite far from the divide peak and involves a ridge traverse on mixed ground. We descended between middle and high peak just as the weather closed in. We didn't know the forecast because the hut radio had been damaged by lightning.
28. Hector Dec '12 I've done this before but this time we bagged it while running the southern crossing. We were training for the race, which I never did (I went climbing that weekend instead).
29. Alarm (from saddle) Dec '12: A solo weekend trip from Wellington. My flight to Christchurch was late and I napped on the side of the road at Kaikoura. Grabbed a free snow stake from the summit.
30. Franklin Travers Range (West Sabine route) Dec '12: Second time lucky for me, third time lucky for my climbing partner. On her first attempt she was in a party where one member was caught in an avalanche and was lucky to walk out of it.
31. Brewster (west ridge) Dec '12: Second time lucky. A high-ish camp helped. I poked my tent pole through my single skin tent. We descended via the face and had to jump the schrund.
32. Dragonfly Peak Jan '13: We got told off when we used the long drop toilet at the private Whare Kea Chalet (1750m), but we wondered if their clients would have preferred the alternative...
33. Ropeless on Hopeless Jan '13 (from Hopeless Hut). We bumped into another Wellington party who had completed the traverse.
34. Mt Barth (east ridge) Jan '13: Who says you can't get hard snow in summer when the freezing level is higher than the mountain you are climbing? Two tools came in handy.
35. Sabre (north buttress direct start) Feb '13. Walked in in trail runners and attached crampons to them to get over Barrier Knob. We evened out the hours-per-day on our three-day journey by camping near the base of the route, instead of staying at the rock bivy.

36. The secret to climbing Unicorn (Feb '13) is to solo the Strauchon face of Dilemma. The party who pitched it (all 28 pitches, crux 15, mostly 10-12) were too tired to traverse to Unicorn and bag the peak.

James on the 1,000m Strauchon face of Dilemma (on route to Unicorn) with Don and Dan several hundred metres below.

37. Tamaki Mar '13 another weekend trip with a friend from Christchurch. His Subaru Legacy got most of the way to Memorial Hut, but at a crawl (probably better not taking the risk without a proper 4WD).
38. Paske (SE ridge) Apr '13: Fresh snow on the ridge slowed me down. Walked in from Lake Tennyson.
39. Dasler Pinnacles (north ridge) Apr '13: For this weekend trip I managed to depart Wellington on Saturday morning and still make it to the bivy just on dark. A great solo climb (quite short and easily achievable in running shoes in high summer).
40. Barnicoat (unmarked route) Sep '13: We made our way up a relatively straightforward and obvious line which to our surprise wasn't marked in the guide.
41. Spencer (north ridge) Sep '13: Snow shoes came in handy to approach from Pioneer Hut. The snow conditions up high were terrible, not a 1+ at all in these conditions (falling ice, snow which turned to porridge at the first rays of sunlight).
42. Vancouver (east face) Nov '13: We almost didn't leave the hut because I couldn't find my crampons. Maybe the mountain was trying to tell us something. Almost got hit by rock fall on the descent. I dived out of the way (it was 50/50 which way to go) and self-arrested above the schrund.

43. Hochstetter Dome (standard traverse) Nov '13: Climbed in the afternoon after flying from Plateau Hut to Tasman Saddle Hut just before noon.
44. Green (east face) Nov '13 in claggy and deteriorating weather. First time I've borrowed warm clothes off my climbing partner (after deciding to leave my down jacket at the hut).
45. Footstool (divide route) Nov '13: This is the only time I've seen a family of five all on one rope for glacier travel. They did well but turned around 20m from the summit.
46. Nazomi (couloir route) Dec 13: We walked up the Hooker with 6 days food and big plans. We settled for Nazomi (a great climb) and a walk out on an average forecast (cell phone coverage at Gardner Hut). Forecasts are open for interpretation however, and our friends climbed the east ridge of Cook while we headed for the cafe.
47. Rabbiters Peak (east ridge) Jan '14: A solo day trip to beat the approaching nw storm.
48. Franklin (good luck creek) Jan '14: Climbed solo from Goat Pass hut & out in a long day. Not as chossy as I was led to believe but I still wouldn't recommend a group of more than 2 people climb this in summer!
49. Lean Peak (from Copland Pass) Jan '14: Yes you can still access Copland pass from Mount Cook Village (and Hooker Hut too, just don't try and go from Hooker Hut to Copland Ridge, that is not possible). On another trip in Apr '12 we spent the night of Friday 13th at Hooker hut. The ghost didn't make an appearance.
50. The Warrior (south ridge) Feb '14: This is where I learnt the value of a motor bike for long river walks. More useful than a 4WD and cheaper too. Despite what I'd read, the Warrior is a total choss pile in summer / rock and not recommended without a snow covering.

The future

More than 25 people have accompanied me to at least one summit. Thanks in particular Lorraine (21), Rob (13), Lisa (7), Steve (4) and Vaughan (3 + several attempts, a couch to sleep on in Christchurch & has offered to store my future motor bike!)

The remaining 50 peaks are generally more remote and weekend options are becoming increasingly limited. Maybe I'll get to spend some more time in Wellington on the weekends! Contact me (simon.colin.bell@gmail.com) if interested in joining me on a future trip or if you would like some beta.

Notices

Don't forget the brand-new sport of Bouldergaine – happening on 15th March 2014 at Castle Hill.

This is your chance to participate in the world's first "Bouldergaine", a brand new event that brings together map sport and rock climbing in a way never seen before!

Bouldering is a type of rock climbing on boulders to a safe height without the need for ropes and harnesses.

Rogaining is an endurance form of orienteering involving locating electronic checkpoints in cross-country terrain.

The Bouldergaine involves a 3hr mini-rogaing event with bonus point challenges involving scrambling or climbing up to a clicker at a high point near each control. Points are gained by finding the checkpoints, and if you can get there, finding your way up to the clicker.

Castle Hill is one of the most spectacular boulder fields in the world, and at only 80mins from Christchurch, the ideal location for this world premier!

Teams of two will run and climb together. Choose a friend or we can pair you up with someone on the day. This is an all-abilities event, although we do suggest that participants under the age of 14 run with an adult.

See our website www.nbs.org.nz for more info and rules. Places are limited, don't miss out! Tickets at www.eventopia/bouldergaine

Roger Banfield, son of Ambrose 1914-1997, has kindly donated these images. Can anyone help identify the climbers? Possibly Canterbury Mountaineering Club and NZAC members? View them on: <https://alpineclub.org.nz/news/2014/can-you-help-identify-these-images>
Please email margaret@alpineclub.org.nz if you have any ideas, thanks.

The Climber's Journal survey

This is your last chance to contribute your thoughts towards proposed changes to the way the NZAC keeps its members informed through our printed media.

Your opinion matters to us, so please ensure forms are returned to Kester@alpineclub.org.nz, NZAC PO Box 786, Christchurch 8140 before the 31 March, 2014 deadline. A copy of the form is available with this newsletter or the survey can be completed online: <http://climber.co.nz/climbers-journal-proposal-questionnaire>

New Guide Alack Challenge Cup

Thanks to the generosity of Peter Garrett of Alpine Risk Management, we now have a shiny new replacement 'Guide Alack Challenge Cup' in time for our 2014 Photographic Competition.

Sefton Priestley (NZAC Programme Manager) and Peter Garrett (Alpine Risk Management)

The original cup was donated in 1948 by Frank Alack to encourage a higher standard of mountain photography. Its whereabouts is currently unknown. (No image of this award is available)

Clarification on judging of this award was received from Frank in August 1953 as follows: "The landscape photos can be ruled out. I would really like competing photos to be those taken during the act of mountaineering, but if you interpret that as I do, that is requiring some equipment, footprints, or figure. It eliminates some really satisfying close-up views in actual climbing, so that I feel the rules must be slightly flexible to include this type of entry." The cup is awarded for the most outstanding photograph of mountaineering not purely depicting alpine scenery (as judged by a mountaineer).

Our sincere thanks to Peter and his company for their generosity. Alpine Risk Management are the brokers for the NZAC's many and varied insurance requirements.

Nepal government announce changes to fees

Realizing mountaineering as the back-bone of Nepal's tourism industry, the Government of Nepal has made following decisions in a bid to make mountaineering royalty fee competitive amongst the neighbouring countries, promote mountains lying in remote and less privileged areas, and create environment to transform the seasonal mountaineering business operational round the year and materialize the concept of 'Nepal for all Seasons'. See PDF at <https://alpineclub.org.nz/news/2014/nepal-government-announce-changes-to-fees> for full details.

1. Provide discount of 50% in winter and Summer Season and 75% in Autumn Season keeping intact the Royalty Fee in Spring Season.
2. Increase the number of climbing member in an expedition from 12 to 15.
3. Provide 100% discount on Royalty Fee for mountains located in mid and Far Western Development Regions for 5 years.

4. Implement Incremental Royalty Break-down System (IRDS), a system under which permit fee increases with the increase in number of climbing members, on all mountains instead of lump sum per expedition having climbing members seven or less than that.

Increase in prices at Ferg's Kayaks

For a number of years now, Ferg's Kayaks have been a strong local supporter of the Wellington Section's activities. They have generously supported many of our events, such as the annual photo competition and play host to our annual summer BBQ. They have also offered discounted entry for members to their climbing wall. After holding these prices for roughly 6-7 years', commercial realities mean the time has come for a small increase.

With effect from Monday 24 February the new pricing will be as follows:

- NZ Alpine Club Night (Monday's) - entry to increase from $8 to $10.
- All other nights, Alpine Club members will gain entry at student prices which are increasing from $10 to $12.

The Section Committee is happy to support these modest increases which will help to ensure Ferg's continues to be able to offer our members a first-class climbing facility. Please show your support for Ferg's by continuing to get down there for a climb at their excellent facilities.

Darrans Winter Climbing Meet

Date: 2013-07-12 (All day) - 2013-07-21 (All day)

Location: Homer Hut

Organiser: Alistair Walker - mealluaine@yrless.co.nz

Section: Southland Section

The Darrans Winter Climbing Meet has been a growing success story- it has introduced many alpinists to the thrills and risks of winter climbing. Last year a bunch of new routes were established. Al Walker has scheduled this year meet from the 12th-21st of July. See forum discussion: <http://climber.co.nz/forum/events/darrans-winter-climbing-meet-2014>
A regular and popular fixture in the NZAC calendar, the Southland Section is again organising their annual Winter Climbing Meet, based, as always, at the Homer Hut, in the Darran Mountains.

Open to all, this year The Meet is running from July 11th until July 20th. Registration of interest sooner rather than later would be appreciated. There is a practical limit to the number of people the hut , it's facilities, and the immediate environment can handle in Winter. For this reason, camping beside the hut is not an option during The Meet. When we ask for confirmation closer to the time, space will be allocated on a first come first served basis. Please note that The Meet is not really suited to those with no Winter experience. If in doubt, contact Al by e-mail (above).

The Meet provides an informal and sociable venue where climbers can get together, meet with new partners, perhaps climb in an area they have never visited, and exchange views and ideas on technique and ethics. You don't need a climbing partner to come along, no-one has ever had any trouble hooking up with one when down there. Don't come expecting to climb only on ice. The Darrans is better for Scottish style mixed, and can be both technical and serious, but best be mentally prepared for anything. Winter climbing in The Darrans is still young, but is on a par with the best on offer anywhere.

Going to the Homer Hut is a natural choice, apart from being right beside the road, big and reasonably comfortable. The Darrans has it all, "roadside" crags 300m high, huge unclimbed faces as big as anything else in New Zealand, peaks waiting a First Winter Ascent, what more could a climber ask! Apart from the myriad of potential new routes, the established climbs are generally proving to be well worthwhile as well.

Daylight is a bit limited in July, but the weather is often better. Conditions on the cliffs may be a bit less snowy, but will always be "interesting". No matter what though, there always seems to be a fair bit of climbing gets done, with the odd new route thrown in.

If you're considering coming, you do need to be aware that the Darrans in Winter can be a gnarly place, and you might have to wait out bad weather. The road can be blocked by avalanches. Bear in mind also, that there is no nearby rescue team. Essentially, you take have to take responsibility for yourself. But don't let any of that put you off, it's still the best Winter climbing venue in the country.

12 new 50-Year NZAC members

The NZAC have recently recognised 12 new 50-year members. This is an outstanding achievement - congratulations to all of you!

Seeking your old climbing gear

Mike and Meg, both alpine club members, have recently taken over the running of Nelson's Natureland Zoo. They are after donations of any old 'biners and/or quickdraws that can be used for hooking up enrichments, perching, ropes etc for the animals. The biners could be locking or not, aluminium or steel and can certainly be old retired ones that you wouldn't want to climb on any more. If anyone has any such kit hiding in the garage they would like to donate, then they would be grateful recipients. Items can be sent to Natureland Zoo, Hounsell Circle, Tahunanui Beach, Nelson, 7011. Send any questions to Mike Rutledge at

Mike@NaturelandZoo.co.nz

Mueller Hut – changes to booking system

DOC is upgrading its booking system for recreation facilities, which means there will be changes to how you book your place at Mueller Hut.

At the moment we do not take bookings, we allocate bunks when you sign into the intentions system. Under the new system, you will be able to make bookings in advance by phoning the Aoraki / Mount Cook Visitor Centre instead of through the website.

These changes will make the process more efficient and once we make a booking on your behalf, you will receive instant confirmation.

Bookings will be open from Tuesday 11 February so from then visit our website at <https://booking.doc.govt.nz/>

Expedition Capital Fund – supporters thank you

Thank you to our three corporate supporters of the NZAC Expedition Capital Fund for their donations to date.

We encourage members to continue supporting these companies to help us grow this fund for the Expeditions of the future.
